Creator	Hayward Family
Creator's Activity/Occupation	Plantation owners - Businessmen - Landowners - Merchants
Biography: The Hayward family from the West Country Counties of Gloucestershire, Wiltshire and Somerset, came to prominence during the Stuart period and via the marriage of Captain Isaac Johnson Thomas Hayward to the widow Maria Elizabeth Wiltens Andree (nee Lemmers) in 1805. It was through this marriage that the Hayward family became involved in the ownership and management of a number of plantations in Surinam. The Dutch Lemmers, Wiltens and Andree families had a long connection with plantation ownership and management in Surinam. As early as the 1730s Lemmers family owned Alkmaar plantation. Johann Frederick Andree (d1794) owned FredericksLust in addition to owning/running a large business which managed plantations on behalf of absentee owners. The two brothers and step-sons of Johann Frederick Andree, Martinus Pieter Wiltens Andree (d1797) and Gerard Adrian Wiltens Andree (d1793) established the adjacent plantations of Pieterszorg and Andreesgift which were merged in 1793 and together comprised almost 1000 acres. Additional to their involvement in plantations, members of the family were active in the colonial administration, After the death Martinus Pieter Wiltens Andree in Suriname, his widow Maria Elizabeth Wiltens Andree (nee Lemmers b.1768-1823) took her children to England where she subsequently met and married Captain Isaac Johnson Thomas Hayward (1778-1827) in 1805. Through this marriage, the Hayward family became involved with the slave dependent Surinam plantations and Isaac Hayward toiled for the rest of his life to make the plantations profitable. For many years the families in England were dependent upon remittances from Surinam and there were many obstacles negotiated in ensuring the plantations remained productive and shipped produce to Europe. The papers of the Hayward Family (2011.0031) include correspondence with the Dutch Wilens Andree Family in their shared interests in the plantations in Surinam as well as disputations over various inheritances. The complex legal situation created by various wills involving the plantations and Maria Elizabeth Lemmers' children to her first husband, meant that the plantations were always under some form of legal contest or dispute as parties sought to obtain their boedel (inheritance). This situation was exacerbated by marriages and premature deaths amongst the Wiltens Andree children; widows and children created additional parties with interests in the boedel. Husbands of the Wiltens Andree daughters became active players in the proceedings. In the case of Elizabeth White (nee Wiltens Andree, 1785-1823), there was an acrimonious split with her husband, Anthony White, over his attempts to gain control of her property and his early mismanagement of the plantations may have triggered Captain Isaac JT Hayward's move to Surinam and assumption of control over the plantations. After the death of Captain Isaac Johnson Thomas Hayward, his son Isaac Johnson Thomas Hayward II (1806-1879) sought a share of the estates for himself and his brother John Frederick Hayward (b.1808). This led to legal proceedings against the surviving half siblings and other family members. The legal proceedings concluded in an appeal to The Hague in the Netherlands and created a significant family split. No longer recognised by his uncles, Isaac Hayward II departed for Australia and the goldfields in 1852, bringing this line to Victoria. Within the Hayward family many generations share the same name, where possible these have been identified, i.e. Captain Isaac Johnson Thomas, and his son Isaac Johnson Thomas (Jnr.). Individuals in this party are listed in alphabetical order where known dates of birth and death are included. Within correspondence the same person may sign themselves, Wiltens Andre, Andree Wiltens, just Andrée or just Wiltens. The most common form has been used. Correspondents or significant persons within (2011.0031), (2013.0039) and (2013.0056) include: • Anna Van Byland (1726-1801) • Anna Maria Catharina Wiltens Andree (1792-1857) • Charles Wiltens Andree Hayward (1866-1950) • Drinkwater Scott Thomas Hayward (1769-1848) • Edward Wylde (1791-?)

Scope and Content of Series

Comprises correspondence and legal documents and genealogies, relating to the Hayward and (Dutch) Wiltens Andree families, their interactions concerning the Surinam plantations and the disputations over various inheritances (boedel) predicated by the will of Anna van Byland, (paternal grandmother of the Wiltens Andree children, d.1801) and other estates.

There are two main record sets – the first is the Surinam papers (1799-1811) which were inventoried c.1933 by numerical control 1-190. See: (2011.0031.0194). These previous controls have been retained and can be searched. Some of the indexed papers are 20th century correspondence regarding the Surinam papers. The second set of papers comprises all papers not on the inventory including Surinam papers (1824-1863), a volume of outwards correspondence from Surinam (1821-1823), as well as 20th century correspondence, transcriptions and genealogical history.

Much of the correspondence addresses family matters and news of events in the localities where the extended family resided in England: the Counties of Gloucestershire, Wiltshire and Somerset. Topical matters include Napoleonic Wars, the shipping disruptions during the 1812 War, the poor climactic conditions and economy following the Napoleonic Wars, social unrest, the suspension of habeas corpus, the Royal coronation scandal, the great Reform Bill, radicals in the 1830s (Chartists), agricultural machine breaking and the Crystal Palace and Great Exhibition. All of this is placed in the context of the family's dependence on the remittances from Surinam and the social milieu of the landed classes.

2011.0031 CORRESPONDENCE AND PAPERS OF THE HAYWARD AND WILTENS ANDREE FAMILIES 1777-1954

The correspondence and papers also record the efforts to make the plantations pay in a complex legal setting in Surinam, in the face of the ongoing disputes by parties aiming to obtain control over the plantations, a volatile market for colonial produce and the vagaries of the environmental conditions. The papers provide some local news from Surinam and the Caribbean such as the Slave Revolt of 1816 (2011.0031.0043) and the fire at Paramaribo, however they mainly focus on the fluctuations of the market and other difficulties associated with making the plantations pay, including the introduction of steam equipment (sugar mill) manufactured and shipped from England. The later documents deal extensively with Captain Isaac Hayward's son, Isaac Hayward II's attempts to gain legal control over the plantations from various heirs and interests, and the ensuing family rift this created.

The production, processing and trade of sugar and coffee within the Caribbean were dependent on the use of slave labour. These papers span the time period when slavery was abolished in the British Empire (1807) but continued under Dutch colonial rule in Surinam (and elsewhere in the Dutch colonies) until 1863. Despite this, slaves and slavery do not feature prominently in the documents. There is an explicit statement on the likely effect on business in the West Indies if the Dutch follow the English regarding the abolition of slavery. See: (2011.0031.0207) (2011.0031.0157) (2011.0031.0213)

Spelling of Surinam has been retained from the letters, although it is most often in modern usage spelt Suriname.
