HISTORICAL NOTE	Margaret Blackwood was born 26 April 1909 in South Yarra, Melbourne. She graduated from the University of Melbourne with a Bachelor of Science (1938) and Masters of Science (1939). During the Second World War she served in the Women's Auxiliary Australian Air Force (WAAAF) and worked on the creation and protection of the RAAF cipher for the Pacific. In 1946 she became Lecturer in Botany as well as Dean of Women at the newly established University of Melbourne, Mildura Campus. Blackwood won a British Council Scholarship to the University of Cambridge, England, where she was awarded a PhD for her work in plant genetics. Returning to Melbourne in 1951, Blackwood became Senior Lecturer, later Associate Lecturer and Reader in the School of Botany until her retirement from the department in 1974. Elected to the University Council in 1976, Blackwood was the first female Deputy Chancellor (1980–1983) and as such the first woman to confer degrees in the University's 127 year history. Blackwood was pioneering not only in her career as a geneticist but also in holding numerous high ranking positions within the university and scientific community – many of which were the first to be held by a woman. She was the first female Fellow of Trinity College (University of Melbourne) (1981), and was awarded an Honorary Doctorate of Law (University of Melbourne) (1983). For her service to education Blackwood was awarded an MBE (1964) and a DBE (1981). Margaret Blackwood retired from the University of Melbourne in 1983 and died 1 June 1986. A comprehensive bibliography, further references and an image gallery is located in the UMA Margaret Blackwood University Leaders Page &lt;Web Link&gt;
