HISTORICAL NOTE	The Department of Fine Arts at the University of Melbourne was established in 1946, when Professor Joseph Terence Burke (1913-1992) was appointed the inaugural Herald Chair of Fine Arts. Conceived of by Sir Daryl Lindsay, the Chair was designed, in the words of the financier Keith Murdoch, 'for teaching the understanding and appreciation of the fine arts and the application of their principles and practice to the life of the community'. Beyond being a role confined to the University of Melbourne, the Herald Chair occupied by Burke from 1946, through to his retirement in late 1978, was fundamental in developing art education and appreciation in Melbourne and more broadly Australia. The papers and documents within this collection show Burke to be an intelligent, witty and charismatic individual, whose expertise was drawn upon regularly, on all matters from education to the establishment of various state and national schemes, societies and government building projects. DESCRIPTION	The Collection contains committee papers, records, lecture notes, diaries, travel itineraries and correspondence relating to both his position within the university and his role in the wider community. Included are a number of photographs taken during this period, along with copies of famous artworks from Europe used for teaching purposes.
NOTE ON COLLECTIONS	The Collection itself consists of several consignments dating from 1978 until the most recent deposit in 1992. Spanning the period of Burke's term as Chair (1946-1978), the documents demonstrate the evolution of art education at the University of Melbourne, and the establishment of public art institutions across the country. Burke was instrumental in developing the Department of Fine Arts from the courses offered, the academics involved, to the financial concerns and creation of international scholarships. In general this Collection gives a clear record of the significance of the role of the Herald Chair, and Burke's impact on the development of the Arts in Melbourne and the nation as a whole. The four deposits of Joseph Burke papers, 1978.0039, 1983.0034, 1986.0037 & 1992.0031 have been split to the form both the Joseph Terence Burke papers 1978.0039, which relate to his personal life and the Department of Fine Arts 1986.0037 which are about the business and operations of the University of Melbourne's Department of Fine Arts. Burke received works from artists such as Julius Kate and Ludwig Hirschfeld Mack in the course of business as Herald Chair for the department.
