mure experimental knowledge (i.e. telling a boy so much too far) is worthless without emotional balance, personal integrity and a deep understanding of the true meaning of love.

Depends dating "trashy" girls as a way of finding sexual release.

Since many boys are restless for excitement and impatient with their progress in the sexual area, they often date "trashy" girls. In this way they think they're letting their strong sexual drive out of their system. And that means getting closer to readiness for "no fooling" steadiness and marriage.

Here is never really love unless until it reality, tested. Love and hate are like two sides of the same coin.

Love is not mere hill or passing pleasure. It is not escape from loneliness or boredom, nor a computable adjustment for practical convenience or mutual benefit.
It is not a one-way feeling, and it can’t be made two-way by wishing or willing it so.

Love is many, many things. It’s a little child’s satisfied response to attention and tenderness, and it’s also the other child’s affectionate curiosity. It’s the playfulness of adolescents and their romantic flights of imagination. Then again it’s the earnest, mutual devotion of mature marriage.

Life is delicate, elusive and above all spontaneous. It thrives on honesty and sincerity and naturalness combined with mutual responsiveness and concern. At the beginning it just “happens” but to flourish and endure, it requires the full capacity for giving of the open heart and soul.

Most people in their teens have some kind of difficulty in talking to the opposite sex. It’s normal and natural.
