<td>HISTORICAL NOTE</td>
<td>N.W. Saffin is veteran Melbourne labour historian who taught generations of students through Croydon High School. Born in 1916, the son of a pastoral worker, he grew up in the western district. The Depression forced him to leave school after fourth form, in order to become a rabbiter. Until the age of 20 he worked as a mail contractor before becoming a student teacher. He subsequently completed Diplomas in Commerce and Public administration and an MA on French Positivism and a further MA and a doctorate at the University of London before settling to teach in Croydon. Saffin published early articles in Labour History, and two books, Science and Religion in Britain 1804-1904 (1973) and Left and Right in Bendigo and Shepparton 1947-51 (1974). Saffin planned five volume work A History of the Victorian Working Man (VWM) 1855-1955 was twelve years in the making, but remains unpublished.</td>
